

Planting Calendar by Month

The planting dates on this calendar range from the earliest (in the spring, you might need to protect from late frosts) to the latest (in the fall, you might need to protect from early frosts). You will probably get the best results by planting in the middle of the range. And remember to keep an eye on the weather forecast!

Things to plant starting in January:

Peas, shelling, sugar snap & snow – January 1st through February 15th
Cauliflower transplants – January 1st through March 15th
Broccoli transplants – January 15th through March 15th
Cabbage transplants - January 15th through March 15th
Collards - January 15th through March 25th
Turnip - January 15th through May 1st
Radish – January 20th through May 1st

Things to plant starting in February:

Beets – February 1st through April 20th
Carrots - February 1st through March 1st
Kale - February 1st through April 1st
Kohlrabi - February 1st through April 1st
Leeks - February 1st through May 1st
Leaf lettuce - February 1st through April 1st
Mustard - February 1st through April 1st
Potato, Irish - February 1st through March 15th
Swiss chard - February 1st through April 15st
Chinese cabbage - February 1st through March 15th
Tomato transplants - February 15st through April 1st
Corn – February 25th through June 15th

Things to plant starting in March:

Cucumber – March 1st through April 15th
Pepper transplants – March 1st through May 1st
Squash, winter and summer – March 1st through May 15th
Watermelon - March 1st through May 1st
Beans, bush – March 5th through May 5th
Beans, lima – March 5th through April 20th
Beans, pole or pinto – March 15th through May 1st
Cantaloupe – March 15th through May 1st
Eggplant transplants – March 15th through May 10th
Southern Peas – March 20th through July 10th
Sweet Potato, slips – March 20th through May 31st

Things to plant starting in April:

Okra – April 1st through July 1st

Things to plant starting in July:

Cantaloupe – July 1st through August 15th
Eggplant transplants – July 1st through September 1st
Okra – July 1st through August 15th

Watermelon – July 1st through July 31st
Southern Peas – July 10th through September 1st
Squash, winter – July 10th Through August 15th
Pepper transplants – July 15th through September 1st
Tomato transplants – July 15th through September 1st
Rutabaga – July 15th through December 15th
Beans, lima – July 25th through August 20th

Things to plant starting in August:

Beans, bush or pole - August 1st through September 5th
Cabbage transplants – August 1st through December 1st
Cucumber – August 1st through September 15th
Garlic – August 1st through September 30th
Squash, summer – August 1st through September 10th
Corn – August 13th through August 23rd
Kale – August 15th through December 15th
Kohlrabi - August 15th through December 15th
Radish - August 15th through December 15th
Swiss chard - August 15th through December 15th
Turnip - August 15th through December 15th
Potato, Irish – August 20th through September 10th
Broccoli transplants – August 20th through December 1st
Brussels sprouts - August 20th through December 1st
Chinese cabbage - August 20th through December 15th
Carrots - August 20th through December 1st
Cauliflower transplants - August 20th through December 1st
Collards - August 20th through December 1st
Leaf lettuce - August 20th through December 15th
Mustard - August 20th through December 15th

Things to plant starting in September:

Beets – September 1st through November 15th
Celery transplants – September 1st through December 15th
Head lettuce - September 1st through December 15th
Spinach – September 1st through March 1st
Strawberries transplants – September 1st through October 15th

Things to plant starting in October:

Onion seed – October 1st through 31st

Things to plant Starting in November:

Asparagus crowns – November 15th through March 15th
Artichoke transplants - November 15th through March 15th
Onion transplants – November 15th through March 1st